UNDERWOOD EXPECTS NEW BID FOR SHOALS

INDEPENDENTS TO MEET LEIGHTON IN FINALE OF SEASON

Last Home Game of the Year Scheduled For the Local Fans

IS CHOICE BIT OF "FOOTBALL PIE"

Thanksgiving Season to Be Ushered In With Real Thriller

Leighton High school journeys to Albany-Decatur on Wednesday afternoon to meet the Albany-Decatur Independents on Cooper-Wells field for the choice Thanksgiving morsel for football fandom to enjoy. Albany High goes out of town for the Thanksgiving affair invading the fair city of the Florentines where they meet Coffee High, Decatur High has no game scheduled for the afternoon.

Thanksgiving, 1923, the powerful Central High team met and defeated Disque High of Gadsden, Thanksgiving, 1922, Albany and Decatur High schools met on the same field and a game was chalked in favor of the Albany team after a lively first half battle. This year it is the Independent team that held Morgan to a single touchdown, defeated a splendid fighting aggregation from the Florence Normal, defeated Lawrence County High on two occasions and suffered a tie with the Falkville team after the Independents had all but pushed the Falkville lads across their own goal line on a number of line drives.

This same team has tried earnestly to schedule games with larger teams of the state and failing it has been the recourse to fall back upon those who were from smaller towns and cities but nevertheless powerful aggregations and real fighters. That is what the Independent team is encountering on tomorrow afternoon at Cooper-Wells field against the Leighton high team. Leighton comes with a clean reputation for hard hitting backs and pile driving line play and they can be counted upon to give the local boys plenty of opposition.

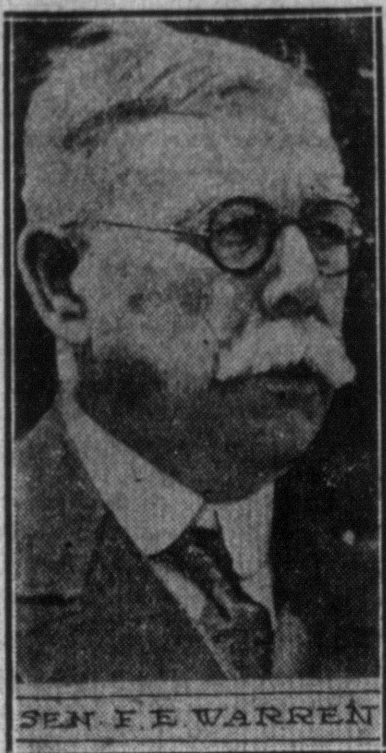

With the calling of the game at 3 o'clock the Independents will be in the best condition that they have been this year physically and mentally. They have suffered but one defeat and feel confident that they will take away the laurel wreath on Wednesday afternoon. Captain Ellison will occupy his regular position at quarterback, while Braswell and Gustin will comprise the half back choices, McRee, who has been one of the outstanding figures on the local gridiron this season will be in fighting form at fullback. In the line Speer will be at his regular position on the right wing, Watson at right tackle, Byers at right guard and Kirby at center. Cobb, Bowen and Shelton will comprise the left side of the line. The Leighton lineup has not yet been given out but it is assured that they are in the best of condition and ready to give everything they have for a victory.

Wednesday's game ends the season for the Independents and it is the first season that an Independent team has survived a full season. As a usual occurrence the team will start out in the early fall with prospects bright and plenty of dare and dash but somehow they fail to get the full schedule that they hope for and at the end of the season they wind up with possibly having played two games and little spirit and fight.

The fact that the Independent team has been a success this year is to be attributed to the work of Manager S. E. Arvidson. Mr. Arvidson has worked untiringly in an effort to get games for the local boys and although he has had a number of games cancelled on him he has always found another team somewhere although the local gate receipts did not always warrant bringing a team of superior calibre on the local field.

The last game tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock is expected to bring out one of the largest crowds of the season and they can be assured that the local boys will battle to a standstill in an effort to gain the decision.

Warren Is in Race to Lead Senate

U. S. Senator Frances E. Warren, of Wyoming, father-in-law of Gen. John J. Pershing, and "the greatest shepherd since Abraham," is in the race to become Republican leader of the Senate to succeed the late Henry Cabot Lodge. He is 80 years old, and one of the richest men in America. He has been in the Senate continuously since 1895.

REPAIRS ARE MADE ON WESTMINSTER

Improvements To Cost the Church About $2,500

The congregation of the Westminster Presbyterian church will soon have a newly conditioned church building, at a total cost of $2,500. Already a new roof has been placed on the building and all the outside wood work has been repainted. Workmen are now busy reconconditioning the basement of the church. New concrete floors and walls are being built.

It was stated by the pastor, Dr. L. F. Goodwin, that a new arrangement would be made in the basement whereby the class room space on that floor for Sunday Schools will be increased. One of the most notable changes to be made at the church will be the installation of a new lighting system, which when completed, will cost $600.

The floor of the church auditorium will be covered within a week or ten days either with cork or with hardwood. It is said that cork, because it contributes to quietness is now very popular for church floors.

Car Loadings Over Million Mark Again

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Freight traffic for the tenth week this year exceeded the million car mark in the period ending November 15, with loadings of 1,015,704 cars, an increase of 21,200 over the preceding week. The American Railway Association reports.

This also was a gain of 23,654 cars over the corresponding week last year.

Since the first of the year 43,166,801 cars have been loaded with revenue freight, compared with 44,680,009 cars in the same period in 1923.

Enjoyable Recital At Westminster

One of the most enjoyed and largely attended organ recitals ever held in the Twin Cities was given Sunday afternoon at the Westminster Church. The pastor Dr. L. F. Goodwin welcomed the congregation present and stated that Frank M. Church, head of the music department of Athens College, had kindly consented to give the recital, and that members of the Westminster congregation would assist in the song service.

The accompaniments were played by Prof. Church, and the songs sung were by Mrs. A. A. Hardage and by Messrs. Gilbert Crane and Henry Davis.

SON ACCUSED OF SLAYING MOTHER WITH HEAVY STICK

Fragment Of Clothing In Kitchen Stove Provides Clue

BLOODSPOTS ON CLOTHES SEEN

Herbert Montgomery Stoutly Maintains His Innocence

(Associated Press)

GULFPORT, Miss., Nov. 25.—A fragment of clothing, said to belong to Herbert B. Montgomery, was found in the kitchen stove partly burned, officers investigating the mysterious death of Mrs. E. D. Montgomery, 70 years old, widow, yesterday, reported today.

The son was arrested yesterday. This, together with bloodspots found on other clothing of the son, led officers to believe Montgomery was guilty of the murder.

In the county jail today the son maintained his innocence, declaring the stains were made by chicken blood.

Mrs. Montgomery and her 45-year-old bachelor son, lived in a cottage at Long Beach, Miss., and did not mingle very much with the town people. They came here recently from New Orleans and lived off the interest from stocks and bonds.

The son did not work and officers were told by neighbors that he was not considered normal mentally.

The blunt instrument which dealt the death blows to the woman in the kitchen of her home early yesterday has not been discovered. Officers believe it may have been a stick of firewood.

Herbert in reporting the murder to neighbors said he went into the yard early yesterday, where his mother had gone to feed the chickens, but did not find her. He said he later discovered her dead in the kitchen.

He blamed negroes who were prowling in the neighborhood with the crime.

MORE THAN 20,000 BALES IN MORGAN

Heavy Ginnings Report Of Government Reveals

Morgan county has ginned, up to November 14, a total of 21,193 bales of cotton from the new crop, according to ginning figures announced today by W. V. Davidson, federal statistician for the county, as received from W. M. Steuart, director.

The figures for the new crop compared with 13,446 bales ginned from the 1923 crop up to the same date, an increase this year of 7,747 bales, or more than 50 per cent.

Hermione Lodge Enjoys Meeting

Hermione Lodge, No. 16, Knights of Pythias, was called to order promptly on Monday evening with a large number present.

The chief feature of the evening was the favorable reports of the committees, who have done some excellent work during the past week in raising of funds to be used in erecting a second unit to the Alabama Pythian Widows' and Orphans' Home, and although the drive has just begun, the committees have already been successful in securing subscriptions for several hundred dollars. It is hoped that all those who have the opportunity to contribute to this cause will do so during this week so that a final report may be had at the next regular convention on next Monday evening.

Blackmailers Got Prince's $750,000 by Trick

Fashionable London is agape at the story told in court by Lord Halsbury, counsel for Charles Ernest Robinson, a bookmaker, in his suit to recover $588,125 from the Midland Bank. Robinson alleges one of the greatest of the Indian potentates stole his wife and took her to Paris, where he was blackmailed of $750,000, of which Robinson got only $125,000, the rest being held by members of the black-mail gang. Robinson thinks the bank should pay him the balance.

BETTER BUSINESS SEEN BY HOOVER

Constructive Program Will Be Taken In By Government

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The general commercial condition in the United States has improved to such a degree that government officials can concentrate their attention on constructive development for the future, Secretary Hoover said today, rather than continuously attempting to ease economic ills for particular geographic sections or industries.

"With the farming situation pretty well cleared up by reason of better prices for principal agricultural products, the pressure for giving relief is a good deal less," Mr. Hoover said.

"We can consider what the government may properly do in aiding the advance of our industrial and economic realizations by proper methods."

Asked to define what he would consider as constructive efforts, which the government might aid, the secretary named the project for the St. Lawrence river canal for development of super power facilities in the eastern quarter of the United States; and the project for conserving and bringing to fullest utilization the Colorado river watershed.

Gold exports from the United States which have resumed recently in a comparatively small way, are expected by Mr. Hoover to continue.

Bloodstains Explained By Pastor As Being From Rabbits

(Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 25.—Possibility that the body of Mrs. C. V. Sheatsley may be exhumed was indicated here today, following a conference late last night between county authorities and Edwin Abbott, an undertaker, who removed Mrs. Sheatsley's remains from the furnace in the parsonage at Bexley.

Mr. Abbott told County Prosecutor King that a portion of Mrs. Sheatsley's skull was broken. He indicated, however, that this might have been caused by the intense heat of the furnace.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 25.—Mrs. C. V. Sheatsley, wife of the pastor of the Christ Lutheran church of Bexley, appeared to be in a normal frame of mind last Monday noon, County Prosecutor John R. King was told at Lithopolis, a village south of here, today by Mrs. Gladys Redelphs, wife of Rev. Harry Dedelphs, of the village.

Mrs. Redelphs visited the Sheatsley home last Monday and was one of the few persons who last saw the minister's wife alive.

Mr. King went to Lithopolis today hoping that Mrs. Redelphs might have some information that would help him in solving the mystery of the finding of Mrs. Sheatsley's body in the furnace of her home last Monday evening.

He announced at the conclusion of the interview, however, that nothing definite had been developed. Mrs. Redelphs said she delivered Christmas cards to Mrs. Sheatsley, which the latter had ordered two weeks ago.

She said she arrived at the Sheatsley home about noon and that she was admitted at the door by Aliee, the 13-year-old daughter. Clarence, the 16-year-old son, the first one, according to testimony, to find something strange in the furnace, and Mr. Sheatsley, Mrs. Redelphs told King, were examining the morning mail.

Mrs. Sheatsley was in the kitchen preparing lunch.

After a short talk with Mrs. Sheatsley, Mrs. Redelphs said she left after having declined an invitation to remain for lunch.

Mr. Sheatsley, in a statement at Canton today, said that reddish stains which were found by King and his investigators in various places in the Sheatsley home yesterday and which would be analyzed to determine whether or not they were human blood, asserted the stains probably were made by him while dressing rabbits which he had obtained on the Saturday excursion.

The jury disagreed on the trial of Jim Latham, negro, charged with violating the prohibition law, in an appeal case brought up from Albany city court, and it was declared a mistrial.

Egypt's Sirdar Bombed and Then Shot

Two bombs, one of which were exploded, were thrown at Major General Sir Lee Stack, Sirdar of the Egyptian army, while he was driving from the ministry of war in Cairo. BRITAIN AWAITING WORD OF CABINET

New Ministry Will Be Given Time To Take Up Demands

(Associated Press)

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The British government is going to withhold further action in Egypt to allow the new cabinet there time to reconsider the British demands, only parts of which the Zagloul ministry agreed to and to communicate officially with London regarding them.

It was stated in official circles today that Great Britain had hoped that the cabinet of Ziwar Pasha will be able to agree to the demands in which case the British government will consider the incident of the sirdar's assassination closed, so far as the diplomatic relations of Great Britain and Egypt are concerned.

River Congress To Open December 10

The National Rivers and Harbors Congress meets in Washington on December 10 and 11. A number of prominent men of the Twin Cities have been appointed by the Chamber of Commerce to attend the conference.

A great deal of important legislation is to be considered at the coming short session of congress, and it would be advisable for those interested in waterways generally to attend.

Special railroad rates are in effect, and information as to how to procure them can be obtained by calling the local Chamber of Commerce.

Jail No Pleasure Resort; They Leave

A pair of young men, one without a left leg and the other minus a right, were the guests of the Albany police last night, and enjoyed a delightful breakfast at the invitation of their hosts this morning.

After breakfast they asked for information as to the customs and qualities of the local jails. On learning that the jails harbored the most efficient band of street cleaners in this part of the state, they advanced the information that they were men of leisure. One admitted that he had earned his bread until 1919, while the other proclaimed he had not done a "lick of work" since 1913.

Disappointed in the discovery that the local strongholds were not pleasure resorts, they asked for the price of a bag of "bull durham" and departed for the railroad, waiting for their private car—the eighth one in front of the caboose. If any neighboring sheriff is ambitious of filling a jail that has all modern conveniences, he might look up the two travelers.

NEW MEASURE FOR DISPOSITION HELD UP BY ALABAMIAN

SAYS FERTILIZER MOST IMPORTANT

Power Distribution Is Declared To Be Secondary

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Senator Underwood, Democrat, Alabama, said today he was withholding his new bill providing for the disposition of Muscle Shoals with the expectation of some private individual or corporation submitting a bill similar to Henry Ford, which was withdrawn.

If this new bid should not materialize, Senator Underwood asserted he would then introduce his bill which he is now preparing and which would have the endorsement of the southern senators at the short session of congress.

He said he believed the best solution for the Muscle Shoals problem was along the line contained in Ford's bid. The main function for Muscle Shoals, the Alabama senator declared, is national defense.

Muscle Shoals was built primarily for the production of nitrogen for the manufacture of ammunition and since a plant must be ready for operation, he said it was logical to convert the nitrogen into fertilizer in time of peace for the farmers.

He said he did not think the distribution of power should receive serious consideration because if Muscle Shoals is developed along the line for which it was originally intended, there would be only a small amount of surplus power.

LUCAS TRIAL FOR MURDER OPENED

Three Cornered Fight in Restaurant Led To Fatal Shooting

(Associated Press)

COLUMBIANA, Ala., Nov. 25.—Trial of Dewey Lucas for the killing of Dan Walker, former marshal of Montevallo, got underway here yesterday with the Shelby county circuit court. The state had finished its case when court adjourned at noon today.

Walker, according to state witnesses, was shot at his restaurant at Montevallo several months ago, in a three cornered fight between Walker, Lucas and Allen Mahan.

Both Walker and Mahan were wounded. Mahan was shot by Walker, while both Lucas and Mahan are said to have fired at Walker.

D. S. Day, Jr., the only eye witness, testified Tuesday that he was in the restaurant when Lucas and Mahan entered. An old quarrel, dating back it is said to the time when Walker was marshal and had arrested Lucas on a whiskey charge, was renewed, Day stated, and ended in the fight.

Day said he ducked to keep from being shot and when he arose Walker exclaimed that he was shot.

The same statement of the shooting was made by Walker to C. L. Meroney, the latter stated, when Walker staggered into his store, adjoining the restaurant and fell to the floor.

The defense was expected to plead self defense. Judge C. S. Lyman announced, however, that only a short session would be held.

Southern Elevens Have Caused Stir In Eastern Invasions During Present Season

In the past years the Southern invasions into the east were looked upon as mere practice affairs for the big eastern institutions who spent many thousands annually in equipping and coaching their football elevens. This year the story has taken another turn for the Southern elevens have shown unexpected strength whenever the east came south or the south journeyed to the east.

Penn State came south to teach Georgia Tech the ethics and code of modern football. Tech made but one first down but by superior ability at following the ball they stifled the furor in the heart of the Nittany Lion by a score of 15-13.

Last week Vanderbilt went far into Minnesota and taught the Minnesota lads, the conquerors of Illinois, that southern football is something more than child's play indulged in by schools for the sake of custom and then not to the extent that it is looked up to and regarded as one of the greatest publicity agents that a school may have. Vanderbilt's victory was clean cut, the victory of a superior team.

Florida bowed to Army by a single touchdown and Yale managed to escape a tie with Georgia only by the virtue of a kicked goal for point. Georgia fought Yale champions off their feet in the first half and only the reserve strength of the Yale team was she finally conquered. Virginia suffered a 27-0 defeat at the hands of Pennsylvania and Centre and Washington and Lee lost to West Virginia, Centre by a 7-point margin and the Generals by a single touchdown made in the last two minutes of play. Louisiana defeated Indiana in another southern invasion.

The showing made by the Southern elevens has been above that of former years and it is highly probable that another year will find them on a par with the Big Ten and the "Big Three," who have held sway for years that football has been known to the American public. Enthusiasm is gaining in the south and from the smallest to the largest institution football is recognized as the real king of sport. The Southern people are responding to the steps made by their own institutions and it seems that the south will soon be at the head of the list in collegiate sport.

Albany High school football representatives run over to Florence on Thanksgiving to battle the lads from Coffee High. The game will have a great bearing on the North Alabama title that is now in a sort of semi-conscious state with no home to go to during the cold winter months.

Coach Webb has been working his men hard this week in preparation for what is probably the headliner of his schedule and local fans feel assured that the victory Coffee won last year will be overshadowed by a victory to the Albany team this year.

Johnston, Giers, Singleton will comprise three-fourths of the local ball totting crowd in the backfield, the other berth candidate not yet having been announced. Pappenburg, Spencer and Zanvit will form the right side of the forwards with Peterson at center. Pappenburg, Mitchell and Captain Lee will be the left side of the Albany line.

The team is in tiptop condition and although handicapped by a lack of weight in the line against the heavier Coffee team it is believed that they will pull through in good style.

Two more American boys are standing at the foot of the ladder which might have landed with a flying leap pretty well up in the region of rare ether. Raymond Mellen, son of the former president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, and Charles H. Sabin, Jr., son of the New York banker, have started sweeping the floors and checking stock in an Albany department store, at the pay customarily given for these services. They are working the regular hours of others on the same job, too, and more pointed they are living on their wages. Is their first plunge into the business world.

PEOPLE HERE FORTUNATE IN SMALL FIRE LOSS THIS FALL

People of the Twin Cities should consider themselves fortunate in going through the late drought without greater loss from fire than was sustained, and they are to be congratulated on their work of keeping down the danger that annually threatens the country at this season of the year. The thought is worthy of consideration on Thanksgiving day, when we look back over the great list of things that we may thank our Maker for.

Every paper we pick up is filled with reports of great fires in other cities, and almost every city has been visited by at least major fire during the dry season, while most of them have had more, destroying some life and much property. But our cities have escaped with only one large fire, and very few small ones. A great deal of credit is due the fire departments of the two cities, for they have worked well, and on at least one occasion, that of the Holland-Blow fire, have won out against great odds in preserving our homes and our property from flames; but the persons to whom we owe most of the credit for our protection is our neighbors, who have each taken care of the houses adjoining his property by keeping the fire dread away from his own dwelling.

LADD ON MUSCLE SHOALS

Senator Ladd of North Dakota expresses regret that Henry Ford withdrew his offer for Muscle Shoals. Other senators have expressed similar view. The public would have found these sentiments far more convincing, however, if senators ostensibly favoring Ford had compelled the senate to pass on the measure embodying his bid. The house had already approved the measure, and yet the senators permitted the senate committee to strangle the bill openly and publicly without doing what they could have done to rescue it from the frankly unfriendly hands of Chairman Norris. There are many who believe that many senators had their actions governed more by a desire to postpone the decision until after the election than by a desire to serve the best public interest.

The government engineers say that the wheels will be ready to turn by next July. Something must be done before then, so that whoever operates the project may make whatever preparatory arrangements are necessary to that end. Senator Ladd says that no other offer yet made except the Ford offer would be acceptable, because the others all contemplate the cost-plus plan, which everybody knows places the emphasis more on the plus than on the cost. The people of this section will be inclined to agree with him. The senator also expresses himself as opposing any distribution of the power to distant points, but rather as favoring the utilization of the power on the spot in the production of nitrates and the preservation of the original purpose of the project as a war preparedness measure.

It is hoped that the withdrawal of the Ford offer and the imminence of the time when the hydro-electric plant will be ready to run will impel the senate to some early and intelligent action. Perhaps no more feasible course presents itself than approval of the measure in which the Ford offer is embodied. Ford may not be the only one who could undertake the program, but he is the only one who has agreed to do it, along the lines of widest public benefit.—Age-Herald.

SHOALS DISPOSITION LOOKS ENCOURAGING

Ten days until congress meets and things are shaping themselves nicely for action on the Shoals. That means settlement if both are inclined to be reasonable. Friends of the Ford offer and those wanting government operation are about to get together. If these can agree on an acceptable formula for legislation disposing of the matter, there will be little attention paid to the proponents of the power companies. Such an understanding will be the death blow to the dreams of the power monopoly.

In the light of developments of the past several days, there seems to be no doubt that some form of government operation will be the final outcome. The proposition is too stupendous an undertaking for the individual. To fully develop the power of the river as should be done—and as doubtless will be done—would tax even the resources of Mr. Ford. Excepting for the fact that government operation is so apt to be wasteful, this is really the logical solution. Private control of the great enterprise would never have been seriously considered had it not been for the attitude of certain elements in congress which were seeking to play into the hands of the power trust through an abandonment of the whole undertaking.

Government operation is not a new idea in this connection. Such was the original purpose. When this development was begun by the government there was no thought of anything else than that Uncle Sam would operate the great nitrate plants himself. The power to be created by Wilson Dam was considered in the light of a great national resource that was to be controlled by the government for the benefit of the people. And its purpose in times of both peace and war was fully set out in the action of congress authorizing the expenditures to be incurred.

The Norris bill is merely a specific proposal to do what the congress had already proclaimed in a general way as its purpose. The details of this measure are not acceptable to a large majority of the members of congress. But Senator Norris says he is ready to compromise. That means he is ready to accept any measure that will give government operation and is willing to eliminate his scheme for a nationalization of big power projects. And government operation confined to the original purpose of devoting the power of the Shoals to the making of fertilizer for the farmer in times of peace, and nitrates for explosives in the event of war, will be acceptable to the former Ford men and the supporters of the Norris bill and should find little difficulty of prompt enactment. Wherefore the outlook for an adjustment at the short session is very encouraging to say the least.—Muscle Shoals News.

MORGAN SCHOOLS WORTH ALL THEY COST THE TAXPAYERS

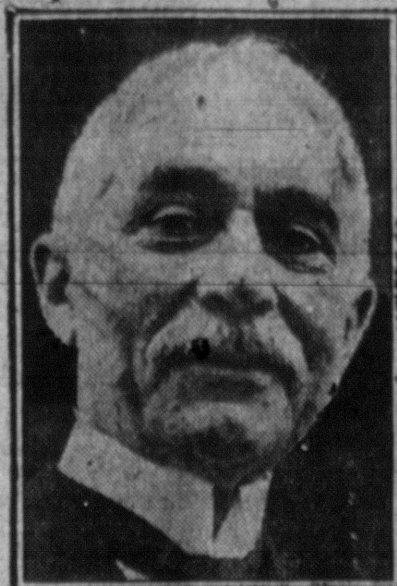

The financial report of E. L. Hays, county superintendent of education of Morgan County, covering the receipts and expenditures of the county school organization, shows that nearly $210,000 was spent last year through the county board. The schools were worth every cent they cost.

It has been a lamentable fact, but perhaps an unavoidable condition, that in past years the larger communities built up their schools more rapidly than did the rural communities. It was natural that the city schools should have larger buildings, because larger buildings were necessary to house the larger number of students but the rural schools are coming along rapidly and The Daily hopes that the time is not far distant when they will be the equal of all the city schools in curriculum, if not in physical and numerical strength.

Thomas H. Edgar A. Bancroft, new American Ambassador to Japan, has been received in audience by Prince Regent Hirohito in Tokio. Patrick Cardinal Hayes, one of the youngest Cardinals in the Catholic Church, has just passed his fifty-seventh birthday in New York City. "Get me out of jail and I'll be a good boy," written in an appealing note to Hazel "Sunny" Boyne, actress, failed to get her to drop her alimony charge against Robert Stuart Eschelman, known on the stage as Don Roberts, and he was held in a New York City jail.

Hartselle News

Rev. J. W. Norton, representing the superannuated preachers of the North Alabama Methodist conference, was in Hartselle last Sunday, and was given an opportunity at the First Methodist church to present the claims of the superannuates to the congregation. For over 20 years Rev. Norton has held this very important post, and the large number of homes over the conference fields tells eloquently how well he has succeeded in presenting the claims of these very worthy ones. After a talk of about thirty minutes in which he again presented their claims, subscription envelopes were passed around to the congregation, and a substantial fund was pledged to the support of it.

The regular fourth Sunday children's day exercises were held at the First Methodist church last Sunday. As usual the exercises reflected much credit upon those who have in charge, the children acquitting themselves in a very worthy manner. The exercises over, the pastor, Rev. R. W. Anderson gave to the children a very forceful talk for about thirty minutes on a very interesting and instructive subject.

The members of the Epworth league enjoyed a "Weenie Roast" at the camp ground last Monday evening, one mile south of town. A large number of the membership attended, and report a most happy occasion. They were chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Houston, and Mr. and Mrs. Gwin Puckett.

Another rain visited Hartselle last Sunday night, beginning about 8 o'clock and continued for thirty minutes. While not enough to wet the ground to any considerable depth, it did much to alleviate the dust nuisance, and retarded the forest fires that are in progress in every direction. Sunday the smoke and dust was almost stifling. Monday morning it had all disappeared.

A union Thanksgiving service will be held at the First Baptist church, in which all the denominations of this little city are invited to attend and take part. There will be no preaching service, but the occasion will be held on the regular prayer-meeting night, and a special program is being prepared, consisting of suitable solos, duets and quartettes, and chorus singing. Several have been asked to make ten minute speeches on this occasion, a large number of them being from the business men of the different churches.

Tuesday evening at the high school auditorium beginning at 7 o'clock, the Hartselle Parent-Teacher association will hold a public meeting, and have designated it as "Father's Night." At this time it is the intention of those fostering the meeting to have all the father's in Hartselle present, and suitable talks will be made by several who have been asked to prepare something for that occasion.

Following the regular program, a community sing will be held, led by G. G. Glover, principal of the city school. Refreshments will be served to all who attend. At this time a banner will be

May morning. Death was due to heart failure. For some time he had been suffering with high blood pressure, and to this cause physicians attribute his sudden demise.

He had been indisposed for some time, though was up as usual Saturday and attended his business during the day. Members of the family were looking after him during the night, and when time to give another dose of medicine which he had been taking arrived, they went to his bed and found him dead.

He is survived by his wife, a son

A large number of people attended the annual turkey event given each year by the Blair store. The sidewalks were crowded, as well as the street approaching the store, and for some time traffic on Main street was stopped. The turkeys were thrown from the roof of the awning in front of the store, and flew to the tops of adjoining stores and some alighted on the telephone cables. Poles were scaled, and cables were traversed, and every turkey soon found an owner.

The ladies of the First Baptist church have secured 18 turkeys and will serve these Thanksgiving day in the Lee Motor company building. The proceeds go toward improvements on the church property.

The stolen car led to their arrest.

AMUSEMENTS

A man for whom Antonio Moreno helped buy a marble headstone, supports him as a player in "Bluff," a current Sam Wood production for Paramount.

For back in 1913 when Biograph was famous, Moreno and Andre Lanoy were constantly alternating together between the New York stage and motion pictures. Every time Moreno was engaged for a production, Lanoy always bobbed up in the same cast. It seemed as though their business fortunes were linked.

Then Andre Lanoy was drawn into the World War, and he went to France to fight. Five months later word was received that he had been killed. All of Andre's friends in the New York theatrical colony grieved for him and it was decided to collect a fund to buy a monument to be placed over Lanoy's grave which was supposed to be in France. Moreno was one of the subscribers.

Years passed. The armistice was signed. Andre Lanoy returned to New York to the amazement of all of his friends. The report of his death had been false.

But for the first time since the war, Moreno and Lanoy appear in the same picture in "Bluff" which comes to the Princess on Wednesday and Thursday and in which Moreno is featured with Agnes Ayres.

Children make constipation a habit— relieve them with Kellogg's Bran

Children punish themselves terribly by ignoring nature's demands. They bring constipation upon themselves. They invite the many other diseases which can be traced to constipation. Immediate steps should be taken to rid them and keep them free from this disease.

It takes ALL bran to be 100 per cent effective. That's what Kellogg's is—ALL bran. That's why doctors everywhere recommend Kellogg's. That's why Kellogg's Bran carries a money-back guarantee to bring permanent relief, if eaten regularly, in the most chronic cases of constipation. That's why Kellogg's Bran, cooked and crumbled, has brought glowing health to thousands—because it is ALL bran.

No matter how long one has suffered with constipation, Kellogg's Bran will bring permanent relief IF EATEN EVERY DAY—at least two tablespoonfuls—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Kellogg's Bran is delicious. It has a crisp, nut-like flavor that simply delights the taste. It is a wonderful surprise if one has been used to ordinary, unpalatable bran.

There are many ways to serve Kellogg's Bran. Eat it with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Look for the recipes on every package and try it in muffins, bread, griddle cakes, etc.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and crumbled, is made in Battle Creek and is sold by grocers everywhere. It is served by the leading hotels and clubs.

He pointed up the hillside to the nearest olive tree, a hundred paces distant.

"Yonder," he said, "is a man's mark. Put me a shaft through the long branch of that first olive tree."

Asad and his officers voiced approval.

"A man's mark, indeed," said the Basha, "so that he be a marksman."

But Marzak shrugged his shoulders with make-believe contempt.

"I know he would refuse the mark I set," said he. "As for the olive branch, it is so large a butt that a child could not miss it at this distance."

"If a child could not, then thou shouldst not," said Sak-el-Bahr, who had so placed himself that his body was now between Marzak and the palmetto balm.

"Let us see thee hit it, O Marzak."

And as he spoke he raised his crossbow and scarcely seeming to take aim he loosed his shaft. It flashed away to be checked, quivering, in the branch he had indicated.

A chorus of applause and admiration greeted the shot, and drew the attention of all the crew to what was toward.

Marzak tightened his lips, realizing how completely he had been outwitted. Willy-nilly he must now shoot at that mark. The choice had been taken out of his hands by Sak-el-Bahr. He never doubted that he must cover himself with ridicule in the performance, and that there he would be constrained to abandon this pretended match.

"By the Koran," said Biskaine, "thou'lt need all thy skill to equal such a shot, Marzak."

"'Twas not the mark I chose," replied Marzak, sullenly.

"Thou wert the challenger, O Marzak," his father reminded him. "Therefore the choice of mark was his. He chose a man's mark and by the beard of Mohammed he showed us a man's shot."

Marzak would have flung the bow from him in that moment, abandoning the method he had chosen to investigate the contents of that suspicious palmetto balm; but he realized that such a course must now cover him with scorn. Slowly he leveled his bow at that distant mark.

"Have a care of the sentinel on the hilltop," Sak-el-Bahr admonished him, provoking a titter. Angriest the youth drew his bow. The cord hummed, and the shaft sped to bury itself in the hill's flank a dozen yards from the mark.

Since he was the son of the Basha none dared to laugh outright save his father and Sak-el-Bahr. But there was no suppressing a titter to express the mockery to which the proven braggart must ever be exposed.

Asad looked at him, smiling almost sadly.

"See now," he said, "what comes of boasting thyself against Sak-el-Bahr."

"My will was crossed in the matter of a mark," was the bitter answer. "You angered me and made my aim untrue."

Sak-el-Bahr strode away to the starboard bulwarks, deeming the matter at an end. Marzak observed him.

"Yet at that small mark," he said, "I challenge him again." As he spoke he fitted a second shaft to his bow.

"Behold!" he cried, and took aim. But swift as thought, Sak-el-Bahr—heedless now of all consequences—leveled at Marzak the bow which he still held.

"Hold!" he roared. "Loose thy shaft at that balm, and I loose this at thy throat. I never miss!" he added grimly.

There was a startled movement in the ranks of those who stood behind Marzak. In speechless amazement they stared at Sak-el-Bahr as he stood there, white-faced, his eyes aflame, his bow drawn taut and ready to launch that death-laden quarrel as he threatened.

Slowly then, smiling with unutterable malice, Marzak lowered his bow. He was satisfied. His true aim was reached. He had drawn his enemy into self-betrayal.

Asad's was the voice that shattered that hush of consternation. "Kellamullah!" he bellowed. "What is this? Art thou mad, too, O Sak-el-Bahr?"

"Aye, mad indeed," said Marzak; "mad with fear."

And he stepped quickly aside so that the body of Biskaine should shield him from any sudden consequences of his next words.

"Ask him what he keeps in that pannier, O my father."

"Aye, what, in Allah's name?" demanded the Basha, advancing toward his captain.

Sak-el-Bahr lowered his bow, master of himself again. His composure was beyond all belief.

"I carry in it goods of price, which I'll not see riddled to please a pert boy," he said.

"Goods of price," echoed Asad, with a snort. "They'll need to be of price indeed that are valued above the life of my son. Let us see these goods of price." And to the men upon the waist-deck he shouted:

"Open me that pannier."

Sak-el-Bahr sprang forward, and laid a hand upon the Basha's arm. "Stay, my lord!" he entreated almost fiercely. "Consider that this pannier is my own. That its contents are my property; that none has a right to—"

"Wouldst babble of rights to me, who am thy lord?" blazed the Basha, now in a towering passion. "Open me that pannier, I say."

They were quick to his bidding. The ropes were slashed away, and the front of the pannier fell open on its palmetto hinges. There was a half-repressed chorus of amazement from the men. Sak-el-Bahr stood frozen in horror of what must follow.

"What is it? What have you found?" demanded Asad.

In silence the men swung the bale about, and disclosed to the eyes of those upon the poop-deck the face and form of Rosamund Godolphin. Then Sak-el-Bahr, rousing himself from his trance of horror, reckless of all but her, flung down the gangway to assist her from the pannier, and, thrusting aside those who stood about her, took his stand at her side.

CHAPTER XXV

THE DUPE

For a little while Asad stood at gaze, speechless in his incredulity. Then to revive the anger that for a moment had been whelmed in astonishment came the reflection that he had been duped by Sak-el-Bahr, dupped by the man he trusted most. He had snarled at Fenzileh and scorned Marzak when they had jointly warned him against his lieutenant; if at times he had been in danger of heeding them, yet sooner or later he had concluded that they but spoke to vent their malice. And yet it was proven now that they had been right in their estimate of this traitor, whilst he himself had been a poor, blind dupe, needing Marzak's wit to tear the bandage from his eyes.

Slowly he went down the gangway, followed by Marzak, Biskaine and the others. At the point where it joined the waist-deck he paused, and his dark old eyes smoldered under his beetling brows.

"So," he snarled. "These are thy goods of price. Thou lying dog, what was thine aim in this?"

Defiantly Sak-el-Bahr answered him:

"She is my wife. It is my right to take her with me where I go." He turned to her, and bade her veil her face, and she immediately obeyed him with fingers that shook a little in her agitation.

"None questions thy right to that," said Asad. "But, being resolved to take her with thee, why not take her openly? Why was she not housed in the poop-house, as becomes the wife of Sak-el-Bahr? Why smuggle her aboard in a pannier, and keep her there in secret?"

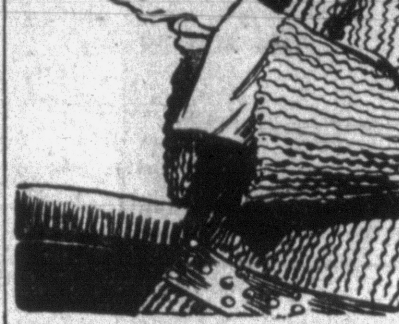

"And why?" added Marzak, "didst thou lie to me when I questioned thee upon her whereabouts?—telling me she was left behind in thy house in Algiers?"

"All this I did," replied Sak-el-Bahr, with a lofty, almost disdainful, dignity. "because I feared lest I should be prevented from bearing her away with me," and his bold glance beating full upon Asad drew a wave of color into the gaunt old cheeks.

"What could have caused that fear?" he asked. "Shall I tell thee? Because no man sailing upon such a voyage as this would have desired the company of his new-wedded wife. Because no man would take a wife with him upon a raid in which there is peril of life and peril of capture."

"Allah has watched over me, his servant, in the past," said Sak-el-Bahr, "and I put my trust in Him."

Moulton News

Gerard Fowke, representative of the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, completed the excavation of the Indian Mound on the Jake Alexander farm Friday. The mound is about seven miles southeast of Moulton at the foot of the mountains in a hollow long known for the findings of Indian relics. Mr. Fowke was very enthusiastic over the relics found and pronounced it one of the best that he had ever examined.

It is possible that the mound was the work of Cherokee Indians or a branch of that tribe and of pre-Columbian work. The most interesting find was at the very bottom and evidently the very beginning of the mound where three skeletons were lying two across each other in the form of an X with a third one cutting the long angles of the X. In all there were considerably above 100 skeletons found with numerous copper beads, broken pieces of pottery bearing signs of most beautiful handwork and ornamentation, tomahawks, one of which was pronounced by Mr. Fowke as the largest he had ever found.

The collection was taken to Courtland where Mr. Fowke is spending a few days putting it in shape for shipment to Washington. The Smithsonian has purchased through Mr. Fowke a portion of the Sanderson collection of Indian relics, a collection made by Mr. J. G. Sanderson of Courtland and considered one of the best in the state. It is understood the purchasing price is around $600.

Sunday was one of the darkest days ever witnessed in Moulton as caused by smoke dimmed sky. It appeared that the south wind blew all the smoke from burning woods of center and South Alabama over the Tennessee valley. An early darkness brought with it a shower that lasted for an hour or so and heavy enough to clear up the sky and smoke laden atmosphere.

Old-Time Cough Remedy—Pine Tar and Honey—Still Best

According to specialists, there is really nothing better or quicker-acting for coughs, chest colds, bronchitis, spasmodic croup and throat irritation than good old pine tar and honey. No matter whether the cough is dry and tight, or loose with much mucus, the pine tar quickly aids in the removal of the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing, also relieving soreness, while the honey both soothes irritation and gives a pleasant taste.

The original compound, which has been used in thousands of families for many years, is Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey. It has had many imitators, but still remains the best, as it is scientifically compounded of just the right proportions of pine tar, honey and other healing ingredients which the best doctors have found to aid in giving quick relief.
